Revealed Why His Wife Took Out.

I DON'T know why it is, said Mr. Dobley, as he pushed away his breakfast table, "but I feel a presentiment that I am going to be ill."

"That's it," said Dobley. "My nerves are running away with me. They are at a tension which threatens a sudden collapse. I start at the least sound. I wake with the bells ringing in my ears and feel that though a wire were gripping my head, it's been that way now for three days."

"I feel sure that the frenzied crab meat in a chafing dish and the Welsh rabbit you had last night would affect your liver, and now I'm sure of it. Either one alone is bad enough, but when you combine the two—it is simply dreadful!"

"It is not the liver, Mrs. Dobley, it is the brain. I have a confused sensation as though the optic nerve had gotten tangled with the spinal cord. Then there is a ringing in the ears with a tingling feeling in the temples, and shooting pains in the back of the neck."

"They have an excellent Household Medical Guide in the back of this," she said, as she skimmed over the leaves. "Have you had dizzy spells and hallucinations, with loss of appetite and distant for exertion?" she asked, reading from one of the pages.

"Exactly," said Dobley. "I feel as though my head weighed a ton, and when I attempt to walk the effort of placing one foot before the other seems to completely exhaust my vitality. The very thought of taking another step is weakening."

"How about chills with sudden flushes of heat, hollow complexion and a yellowish tinge to the whites of the eyes?" asked Mrs. Dobley, anxiously.

"All of those," said Dobley. "I tell you, Mrs. Dobley, I am threatened with a serious collapse. I have been working too hard."

"You have the grip," said Mrs. Dobley, firmly, closing the book, "and you must not think of going downtown today. Simply telephone to the office that you are ill, and take a day of quiet rest. I will fix up some remedies that will break up your cold, for really grip is only an exaggerated cold. And the rest will do you good."

"I can't rest, Mrs. Dobley. I don't think it would agree with me to stay home. I'd fancy I heard the ticker calling me or the manager of the office was on fire, or something."

"Now, you go upstairs and get into a smoking jacket and slippers, and first of all, I will fix up some remedies that will break up your cold, for really grip is only an exaggerated cold. And the rest will do you good."

grieved, or is it one of those perpetual glooms that become part of one's very existence? The freeing of the head and the boiling of the chest simultaneously is a great relief for taking the mind off business troubles. It is impossible for one to worry about the price of gas stock with these two restoratives in operation."

"That's it," said Mrs. Dobley. "It's the counter-irritant that cures. I'll venture to say that you have no symptoms of direct fever at present. You said this morning that you couldn't put one foot before the other."

"I feel now," said Dobley, "that if I could shoot these various glaciers and volcanoes that you have surrounded me with I could spirit around a cinder path in time to music. About this time, then, I am going out to luncheon when I am downtown. What a terrible thing it would be to be condemned to stay at home doing nothing every day! It would drive me crazy in about 48 hours."

"But, like all New Yorkers, you are fond of talking about the nervous strain caused by the rush we live in. The noise, the elevated cars and all that, when in reality you couldn't live in any other atmosphere or environment!"

"They say," said Dobley, shifting the ice so that it would melt equally over both sides of his neck, "they say there are microbes in the New York air that are different from the germs that exist in the atmosphere of other cities. I suppose we get accustomed to absorbing these particular ones, and we get to like them. If a New Yorker found himself in a quiet country place with no prospect of getting back to Broadway and your little book would think the roar of the elevated the sweetest music in the world!"

"But he would begin talking about the terrible strain he lived under just as soon as he got back to town. It's artificial, but then we are fond of gilding and showing in every department. Take our restaurants—and, talking about restaurants, Mrs. Dobley, I am of the opinion that I should feel much better if I were allowed the excitement of a few lamb chops just at the moment. I feel a peculiar gnawing."

"I think you'd better have a fresh poultice," said Mrs. Dobley. "You lose the effect of these poultices unless they are changed quite often."

"I won't worry if I lose the effect," said Mr. Dobley. "There is something about a poultice that has a peculiar humbling to me. Modern medical authorities laugh at poultices. They say never put a poultice on anything but a burn, and even then your little book 'Helpful Hints for the Kitchen' advocates them strongly. I see."

"There is nothing like a poultice," said Mrs. Dobley.

"No," replied her husband, sadly, "it occupies a niche all by itself; it's a solitary in the scheme of life. It's a solitary, clinging emblem of exasperation."

"I can see that you feel better already," said Mrs. Dobley. "I can always tell when you begin joking that you are really happy."

"Happiness is a big word," said Dobley, adjusting the drip to a point just above his left ear. "I've been happier than I am at this moment, and yet I have been more unhappy! There is a certain repose about the feeling that a piece of ice on the head gives you. Then the next act of having had nothing to eat for a number of hours has a chastening influence that cannot be denied."

A common tarred paper was all right for your granddaddy to use as inside lining and outside covering of his buildings.

It is known as the Neponset Waterproof Red Rope Fabric. It is a splendid roof and side covering for outbuildings, and takes the place of back plaster in dwellings. It is proof against wind, water, frost, and insects, warm, dry buildings, and is much cheaper than shingles or clapboards.

For inside lining Neponset Black Building Paper is very inexpensive.

It is also waterproof, colorless, and clean. Hundreds of farmers are using this paper to-day, and repairing buildings at slight cost.

MOBILITY OF BOERS

One of the Wonderful Features of South African Campaign.

Boers Report a Serious Disaster to the British at Bradford.

London, April 12.—The latest dispatches, if they are to be taken at their face value, illustrate once more the remarkable mobility of the Boer irregular troops. One month ago this week Lord Roberts occupied Bloemfontein practically without opposition. Later he sent out troops to the east and north and cleared the country throughout of armed opposition, while Generals Clements, Gatacre and Brabant apparently stayed on the extreme east side of Bloemfontein. According to all accounts, these generals were close on the heels of the flying Boers. They managed to slip past the British cavalry and concentrating made a descent on Thabanechu, east of Bloemfontein, which was badly abandoned. The British falling back on their base. At Rannapoot the ambushade took place where nearly 400
British troops were surprised and taken prisoners, while a large convoy of wagons was lost.

The Boers, it is said, after their success, sent flying columns all over the Free State, penetrating to Rensburg on the south,
where they were again another trap
on the British and captured 601 men.
They now have General Brabant's men huddled up in Wepener, and a late dispatch from Bethulie expresses a fear that the burghers will destroy the bridge over the Orange river. On the extreme west they are at Paardeberg
and in the immediate vicinity of Kimberley, where the Boers have been attacking the British forces north of Ladysmith. The general situation, it is thus seen, is not very satisfactory from the British point of view.

At 5 o'clock the house under the terms of the special order proceeded to vote.
The roll call was followed with intense interest. When the speaker announced the passage of the bill concurring in all the amendments, aye, 18; now, 12;
present and not voting, 11; the Republicans cheered for several minutes.

The bill now requires only the signatures of the speaker of the house and
the president of the senate before going to the president for his approval. These signatures will be attached today, and
before tonight the bill probably will be
a law.

As the bill originally passed the house
it simply imposed 15 percent of the Ding-
ee rate on goods going into Puerto Rico from the United States and coming
from Puerto Rico into the United States.
As amended by the senate and agreed to
by the house all restrictions on goods
coming into the United States from Puerto Rico were eliminated and certain
foodstuffs and other articles which heretofore had been excluded from free
operation of the 15 percent duty imposed
on goods coming from the island from the United States were included.

signatures will be attached today, and
before tonight the bill probably will be
a law.

As the bill originally passed the house
it simply imposed 15 percent of the Ding-
ee rate on goods going into Puerto
Rico from the United States and coming
from Puerto Rico into the United States.
As amended by the senate and agreed to
by the house all restrictions on goods
coming into the United States from Puerto Rico were eliminated and certain
foodstuffs and other articles which heretofore had been excluded from free
operation of the 15 percent duty imposed
on goods coming from the island from the United States were included.

The bill now requires only the signatures of the speaker of the house and
the president of the senate before going
